It is advisable to check the rates and schedules before embarking on the trips because of possible changes due to the season, oil prices and competition amongst the ferry and boat operators. The rates and schedules supplied here are effective at the time of writing only. If you are already on Koh Chang and would like to go to the satellite islands, take the Nor Nou Kaibae Hut Speedboat Express (66 8 1982 9870, 66 8 1817 6832). The trip starts from Kaibae Hut Pier instead of Bang Bao. Another company that provides daily transfer to other islands is Bang Bao Boat (66 8 4866 1886) which operates daily transfers to Koh Mak and Koh Kood from the Bang Bao Pier on Koh Chang. It also provides transfers to other islands as shown on the schedule.

Transportation On Koh Chang On arrival at Koh Chang, you will find some mini pick-up truck taxis called Songthaew ready to take you anywhere on Koh Chang for 50 to 150 Baht per person depending on the distance. This applies to other piers as well. In addition to that, there are also motorcycle-taxis on the island that are based in Bang Bao. From Bang Bao, they charge 20 Baht per person to the end of the fishing village pier and 120 Baht to White Sand Beach.

KOH CHANG

Beaches

The pristine beaches of Koh Chang is undoubtedly the island's main attraction. From long white powdery sand to pebbled beaches the island is a perfect destination for beach-lovers. Its warm crystal-clear turquoise seawater is ideal for swimming. Its wide expanse of sand is a playground for those who loves to do nothing but just bask in its natural beauty. Most of the accommodations are on the west coast where the beaches are blessed with fine white sand and a spectacular view of the sunset. The east coast is more seclusive with minimal development and has a more serene and local ambience.

Klong Son Beach Upon disembarkation from the ferry and heading west, Klong Son is the first village to greet you. Klong Son Beach is located behind a lush tropical rainforest. It has a scenic cape overlooking Koh Chang's twin island, the Chang Noi island, which provides shelter to the beach from strong currents. As a result the seawater here is calm and ideal for sea kayaking. It is a secluded beach suitable for those who seek serenity. Klong Son is home to the first 5-star resort and spa and an elephant camp.

White Sand Beach Adequately named, this is a long strip of powdery white sand beach that slopes gradually into the sea. The beach is extensively wide and picturesque during low tide. Casuarinas and palm trees line the beach while forested hills lurk in the background.

Macaques roam the forest, occasionally hanging on to the trees. It is the busiest area on Koh Chang, with most of the accommodations, restaurants, nightlife, shops, and commercial establishments. As the sun sets, alfresco dining takes over the spacious beachfront. Barbecue seafood, fine wine and cool drinks are served amidst soothing melodies. Deeper into the night, the popular Sabay Bar comes alive and the fire-flinging show begins. Bars and pubs play their music while guests laze around on mats and decks on the beach. Some live bands play outdoor, especially on full moon nights and festive seasons.

Kai Mook Beach This is a small stretch of pebble beach that sits in between the White Sand Beach and Chaichet Cape. The shallow seabed is carpeted with shiny pebbles that resemble pearls or Mook in Thai, hence it's name. It is a quiet and peaceful beach. Snorkeling among the fishes, corals and seaweeds is a favorite pastime.

Laem Chaichet (Chaichet Cape) This is a distinctive cape with a small and secluded rocky beach to the north which is separated from Kai Mook Beach by some forest land. The southern section of the cape curves into a bay of long and wide sandy beach that slopes gently into the sea. Chaichet beach is ideal for swimming and watching the sunset. The cape and the pier offits shore is an ideal viewpoint of the Klong Prao Bay and a good spot for onshore fishing, especially for squids. Tiny shrimps are also seen along its shorelines and villagers are occasionally seen walking along the seabed scooping them up. These shrimps are known to be an important ingredient for the famous Koh Chang shrimp paste.

Klong Prao Beach Klong Prao literally means coconut canal. Indeed, the long stretch of sandy beach is segmented into two sections by a canal that leads up to the famous Klong Plu waterfall. The canal itself is a tourist destination as the mangrove forest attracts visitors who often visit it at night to watch the beaming lights of fireflies. Lined with coconut trees the beachfront commands a magnificent view of the islands off its shores and the Chaichet Cape. High-end resorts have grown rapidly and the village is now rivaling White Sand Beach as the little town of Koh Chang with its wide range of commercial establishments.

Kai Bae Beach Palm trees and fine sand with a gorgeous view of the nearby outlying islands are the main features of Kai Bae Beach. It is a jumping off point for island excursions. Dive shops and boat rental services are scattered around. The village is a convergence of shops, restaurants, cafés, bars and pubs and gets lively after sunset.

Perched on the hilly road leading to the Lonely Beach, south of Kai Bae is a viewpoint with a majestic vista of the island's curves and bays as well as a bird's eye-view of the magnificent islands. The nearest island here is the Koh Man Nai where you can reach by a canoe or wade through chest-deep waters during low tide.

Lonely Beach Once a truly lonely beach and a haven for backpackers, a recent visit to the village proves otherwise. Yes, Lonely Beach is not lonely anymore! The little village is now a melting pot of small shops, convenient stores, dive centers, restaurants, bars and pubs. It is a rendezvous for those who wish to meet and greet after dusk, strangers and friends alike. Its beach, however, remains as seductive as it was years ago. The fine white sand and the swimmer-friendly warm waters continue to lure visitors.

Bai Lan Beach This is a small sandy beach with expired corals off its shore. It is a quiet beach backed by a forested hill and home to the island's first adventure park, the Treetop Adventure Park. Simple accommodations catering to backpackers dot the beach with some more upscale resorts popping up.

Bang Bao Well-known as a fishing village and a springboard to other islands, it is a sheltered bay where locals still live in houses built on stilts above seawater. Seafood restaurants, souvenir shops, boat rentals, dive shops and tour operators all merge at the long wooden bridge that leads to the pier. It is a favorite place for fresh seafood and shopping for some local stuffs. Few bungalows have sprouted amongst coconut groves. The Bang Bao Beach is relatively small and quiet.

• Beaches •

Klong Koi Beach is a hidden zone with just a few resorts. The area is sparsely populated. Getting there is a challenge as the unpaved road can be rugged and dusty but once there you are in a world of your own!

The East Coast The east coast of Koh Chang boast of nature, tranquility, waterfalls, fresh local seafood restaurants, authentic local lifestyles and some fine sandy beaches such as the Kong Kang Bay and some stretches of isolated beaches.

Salak Khok Bay is a fishing and agricultural community. Fishing boats anchor along a canal flanked by mangrove forests. Here you find fresh seafood from daily catches prepared by the locals. Sunset dinner cruise by local wooden boats set off along the canal to the estuary at around 5:30 pm returning by 7:30 pm. The meal usually includes 4 dishes, water and a bottle of wine. Firefly tours and kayaking can be arranged by the friendly villagers.

The road on the east coast tails off at Salakphet, a fishing village long famous for its seafood restaurant by the same name. Salakphet and its adjacent Ban Rong Than are the biggest local communities in Koh Chang. Both are ideal shelters for fishing boats during the monsoon season. The Atulaporn and the Salakpetch temples are religious rendezvous for the locals. A memorial commemorating the sea battle between the French and the Thai navies stands at the southern end of Salakpetch Bay. Two kilometers northeast is the Kiriphet waterfall which commands a magnificent view of the bay.

Diving in Koh Chang just got a whole lot more interesting. A decommissioned 100-meter long naval vessel was sunk on the 22nd of November 2012 off the southwest coast of Koh Chang. The full sized HTMS Chang, formerly USS Lincoln County, now serves as an artificial reef and newest dive attraction. Two other wreck dive sites are the Koh Chang Wreck and the Pak One Wreck.

The former is a Thai warship sunk by the French navy in 1941. The wreck is only 15 meters deep at Salakphet Bay. The Pak One Wreck sunk after hitting a coral reef in August 1996 on its way to Vietnam. It resurfaced almost 8 years later. The 900-ton tanker posed a danger to ships on international waters.

The Royal Thai Navy drained off its 600 tons of liquefied petroleum gas and re-sank it between Koh Chang and Koh Samet. It now lies horizontally in 35-meter deep waters.

It surprised many when all of a sudden there are over a dozen optical shops on Koh Chang. Reasons are quality international brands with certificates of guarantee at a price much lower than anywhere in the west.

The main road west of Koh Chang from Klong Son to Kai Bae is a popular hiking route. On the northern part of the island, you can walk from Ban Klong Son to White Sand Beach. The best hiking routes are in the southern half of the island since there are fewer roads. For those seeking a more adventurous hike, go inland to the steep and forested hills. Shorter hikes to waterfalls from their main entrances are becoming popular. There is a footpath that connects Ban Klong Prao on the west coast with Klong Mayom to the east. However, this difficult 6 to 8-hour hike needs a knowledgeable local guide. Khun Rath usually takes the hikers to Klong Koi Jungle, the largest jungle zone in Koh

Chang, 1.3 kilometers away from Bang Bao. The hike starts 8:00 am, finishes 5:00 pm and costs 800 Baht per person for foreigners inclusive of transfer service, food, beverage, and hiking equipments which include shoes, bags, and mosquito repellent.

Popular Bird watching sites are at Khao Laem and Khao Yai where native species such as the Koh Chang hornbills are commonly spotted.

Fireflies swamp the mangrove forest at night sending out mating signals as they settle down. The simultaneous flashes of green lights also signal the arrival of tourists wading through the quiet night on boats to witness the romantic phenomenon. Some of the best spots are at the canals of Klong Prao and Salak Khok.

The Chang Chutiman Tour (089 939 6676, 087 135 7424) near Klong Prao Beach operates a one-hour elephant trek at 850 Baht and 1,500 Baht for two-hour treks. Children under five years old trek for free. The trek takes you into the tropical rain-forest, pomelo orchards, rubber and herbal plantations and the secluded Wang Nam Kiew Waterfall. There you can relax, picnic, swim in the clear water pond and enjoy the environment. Experienced mahouts give courses on elephant-handling including bathing and riding on an elephant on your own when you can take home a photo of yourself as the mahout! Coffee and tea are served at the camp just before you embark on your journey which can be at any time to your convenience. Free transport to and from your hotel is provided. The camp can also arrange weddings for couples. The other camps on Koh Chang are the Ban Chang Thai (039 551 474) and the Klong Son Elephant Camp or Ban Kwan Chang (081 919 3995). All elephant camps are supported by the Asian Elephant Foundation.

Waterfalls

The high peaks and steep mountains of fertile rainforest create spectacular waterfalls, 5 on Koh Chang and 2 others on Koh Kood.

Than Mayom is a 4-level waterfall behind the Koh Chang Marine National Park office on the northeast section of Koh Chang. A 400 meter walk, also around 20 minutes, along paved concrete and a durian orchard leads you to the fall. Here, camping is safe. Tents can be rented from the national park office at 200 to 500 Baht depending on size. Rest rooms and food stalls are available. Swimming is allowed and the sunrise can be a real treat.

To the north is Klong Nonsi, a smaller waterfall with several cascades. The one-hour, 3 Kms (from Ban Dan Mai) trail is more challenging.

The 7-level Kiriphet Waterfall is about 2 Kms from Salak Petch. During the rainy season it looks more like a 2-storey fall of 5 meters each with a pool at level one. The Salak Petch Forestry office located nearby can lend a helping hand.

Klong Nonsi Waterfall

Klong Plu Waterfall

Klong Plu Waterfall is the best known waterfall due to its accessibility. Located at Klong Prao it is only a 20 minutes hike along a stream. The first of the 3-level fall is 10 meter tall with a huge pool in front. Visitors just cannot resist plunging into the refreshing pool.

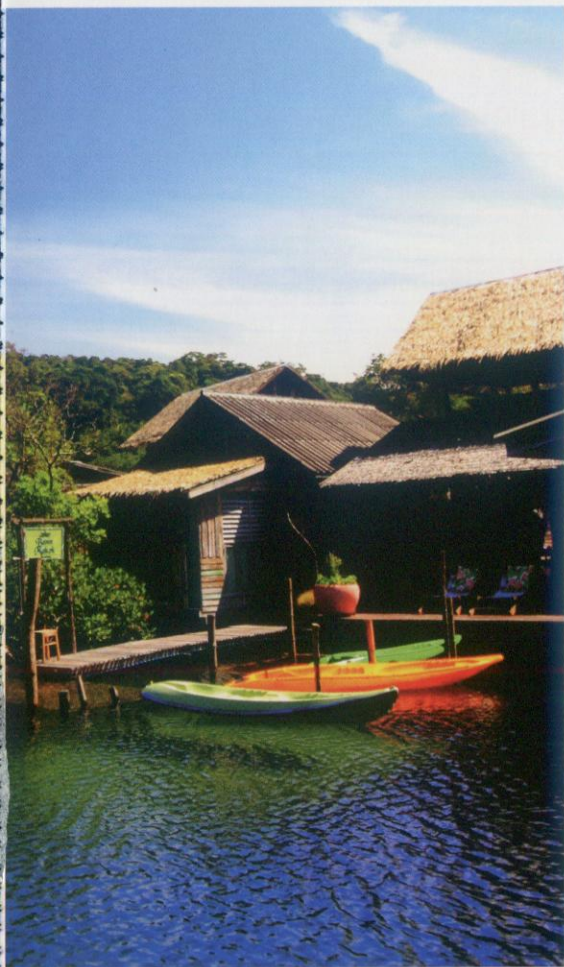

Klong Yaiki

Klong Nueng Waterfall is the tallest waterfall with a chest-deep pond in front. Getting there is a challenge. A huge boulder stands your way after a one-hour hike. However, once you climb over it you will exhilarate at the sight of the magnificent tall waterfall.

Klong Yaiki Waterfall is a breathtaking waterfall in Koh Kood. Huge slabs of rocks as if laid on purpose form the tiers of the waterfall which converge on the large plunge pool at the front.

Klong Chao Waterfall

The picture-perfect Klong Chao Waterfall with its huge plunge pool in front is a real treat. A 20 minutes boat ride or kayaking upstream along the Klong Chao river from its bay plus a 5 minutes walk lead you to the spectacular waterfall. Alternatively, you can take the 400-meters, 10 minutes hike. King Mongkut (King Rama VI) visited the waterfall in 1911. The royal name "Anamkok Waterfall" was bestowed to it in commemoration of Ong Chiang Lue, the Vietnamese king who took refuge in the kingdom during the reign of King Rama I in the late 18th century.

Islands

Koh Chang Marine National Park is comprised of 52 well-preserved islands. Most of them have little or no development at all. Only 10 are facilitated with accommodations ranging from US$20 to USD200 and above. Fresh, laid-back and tranquil, a visit to these islands is a journey back to nature.

Taking Koh Chang as the hub, we explore the islands anti-clockwise from the northwest.

Our island hopping excursion starts with Koh Chang Noi which faces the Laem (cape) Chang Noi and Klong Son Beach. The forested island of rocky shores has a splendid unspoiled coral reef.

Further down is Koh Yuak which has a small sandy beachfront formed from long-decayed corals with clear and shallow water good for snorkeling. Next to this is Koh Plee and Koh Suwan, both with rocky shores. An unnamed isle, now unofficially called Koh Rom because of its outstanding tree which resembles an umbrella, is well-laden with colorful corals about 6 meters deep. It is a new-found snorkeling site. Further south is Koh Man Nai which faces Kai Bae Beach and can be reached by wading through chest-deep water. The island bares its lovely sandy beach during low tide. Close to this is the Koh Man Nok, a twin island that is linked water and plentiful of gold-colored seaweeds.

Most of the islands are situated south of Koh Chang. Koh Khum was the battleground between the French and Thai navies during the colonial days. It is a good dive site especially at Lam Hin area where corals at Hin Look Bard and Hin Larp are visible at 10-20 meters deep. Fishing enthusiasts will like it here as there is an abundance of larger fishes.

Koh Phrao or Koh Sai Khao is a small island within Ao (bay) Salak Petch. The abundance of coconut trees and white sand give it its name. So abundant is the sand that a sand dune now extends to the sea. The serene island of clear seawater and fine sand has a concrete pavement by the seaside. A concrete bridge stretches out into the sea and serves as a pier and a great viewpoint. There is only one resort with full board accommodation package here.

Three small islands, Koh Laoya Nai, Koh Laoya Klang and Koh Laoya Nok forms the Koh Laoya. They are famous for their long sandy beaches, clear waters, green forest and beautiful coral settlement, particularly Koh Laoya Klang. A wooden bridge connects Koh Laoya Klang to Koh Laoya Nai. Again, there is only one resort with full board package here.

A hop away from Laoya is Koh Wai which boasts of corals right from its beaches, especially the large lump corals. The northern beach is more popular due to its long sandy beach and healthy corals which stretches up to 2 Kms. Seawater is shallow and snorkeling is a must-do. Encircling the island are many rocks, superb playground for onshore fishermen. Only 2 resorts exist here.

The Beach Natural Resort is located in the middle of the crescent shaped half moon Bang Bao Bay, KOH KOOD. The ocean shimmering a perfect blue-green, and snow-white sand glittering in the sun. With its relatively shallow waters, widely accepted as the most beautiful and safest bay on the island. The 9 villas and 19 bungalows are idyllic set in a Bali style blended with Thai culture.

Koh Ngam - Courtesy of TAT

Just about 200 meters from the southern coast of Koh Chang is the enchanting Koh Ngam, a small island with a very narrow sand dune that forms a gorgeous contour holding the northeast and southwest sections of the island together. The almost kidney-shaped island looks like 2 separate islands from afar. Besides holding the island in one piece the sand dune creates 2 crescent-shaped lagoons which are only 50 meters apart. Corals and fishes are aplenty. A rope-guided hike up the 100-meter tall hill on the southwest of the island is both challenging and rewarding.

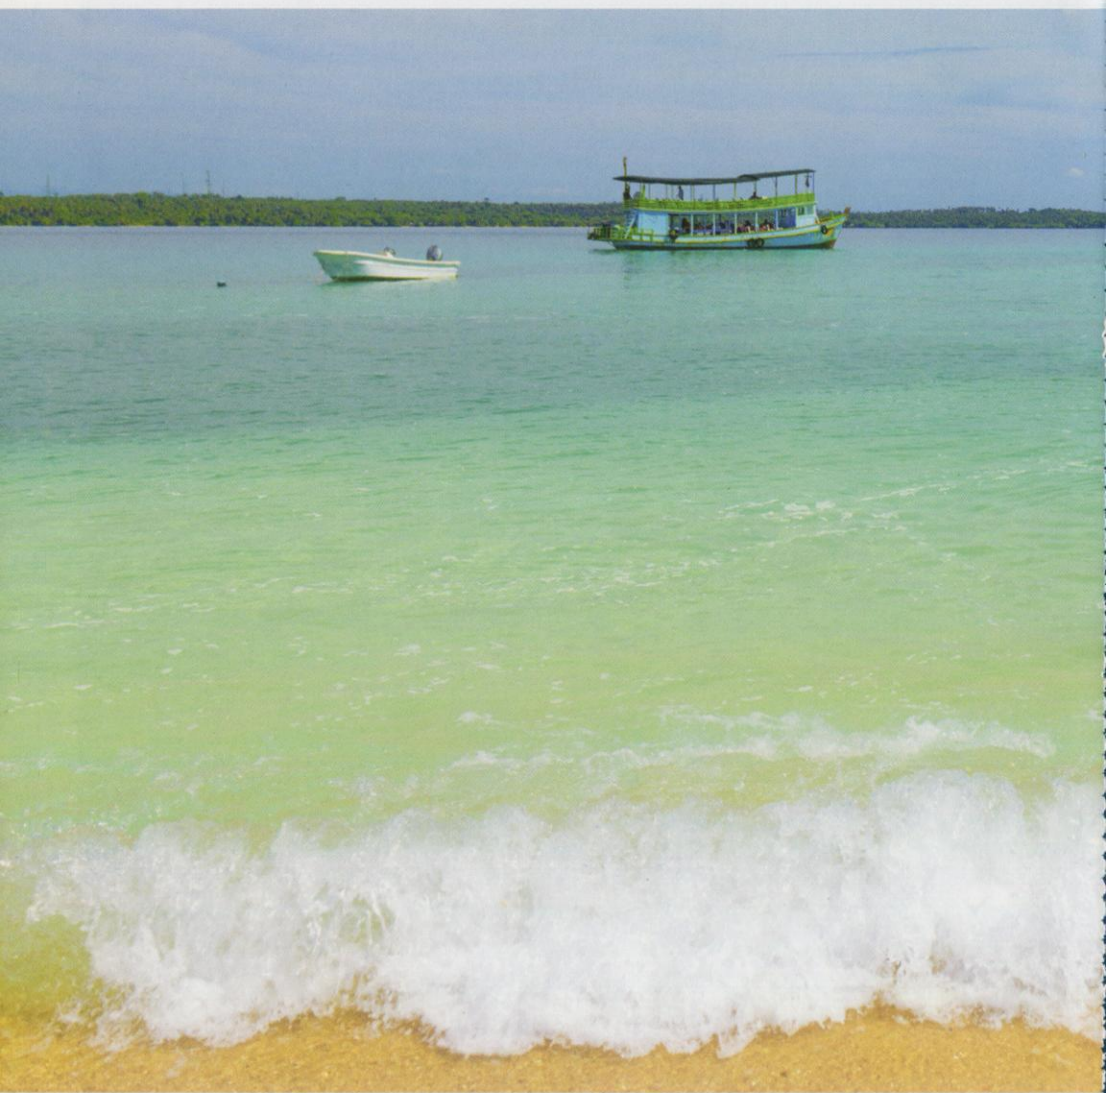

Koh Yak Lek - Courtesy of TAT

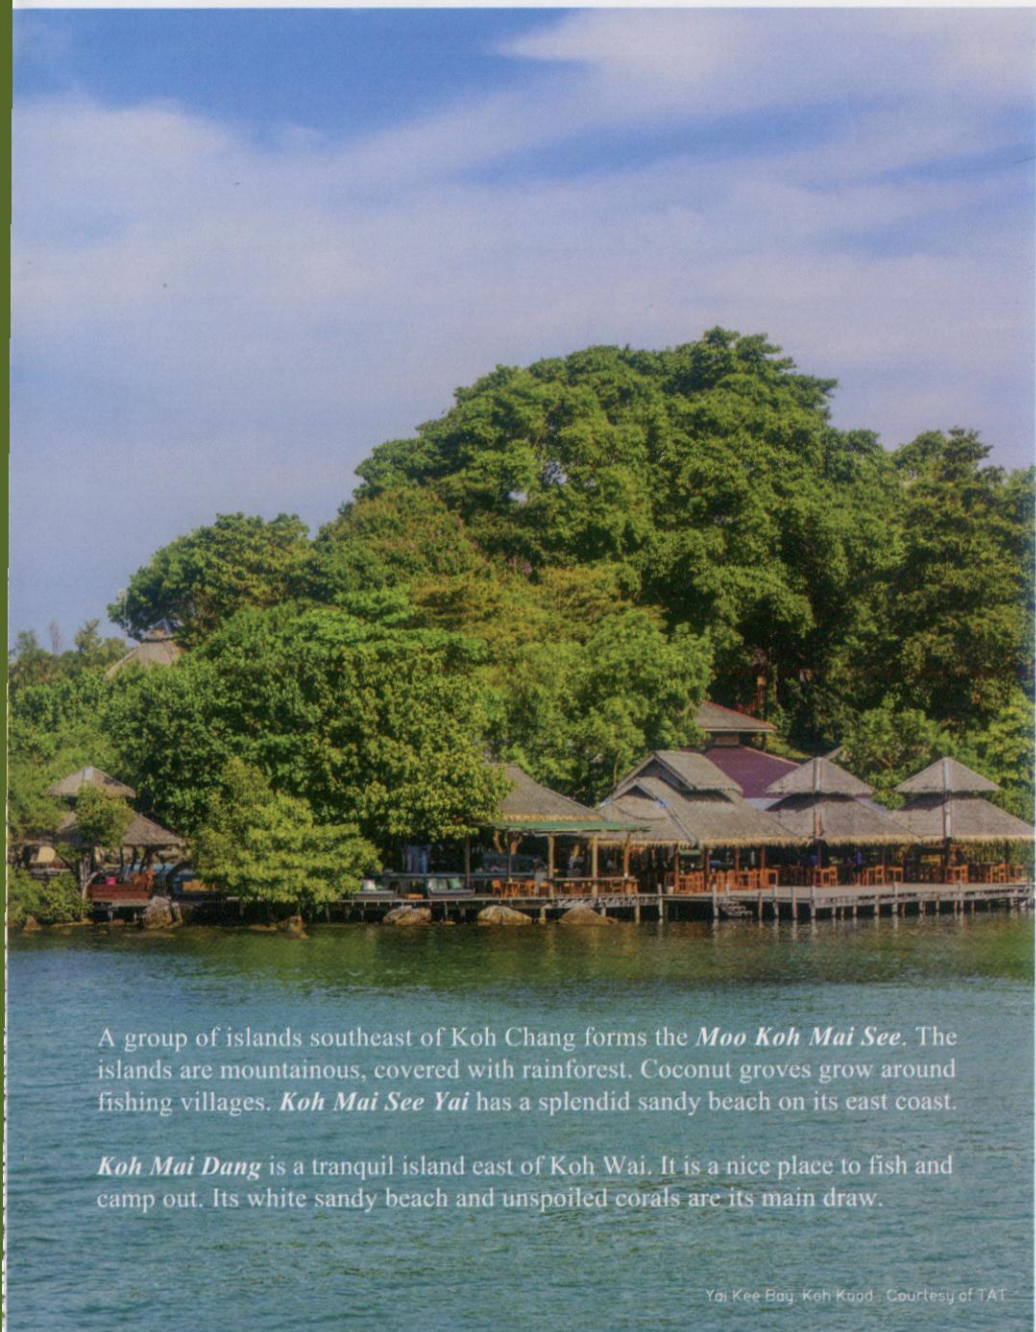

Koh Ranyang Nok - Courtesy of TAT

Over the other side of the hill is a white sand beach of decayed corals. The beach here is an excellent viewpoint for Koh Wai, Koh Mak, Koh Laoya, Koh Kradad and Koh Chang. It is also a great place to watch the sunset. Fresh water ponds are found inland. A waterfall flows across the island during the rainy season. Koh Ngam is ideal for family vacations. However, there is only one resort here. Advance full board bookings are recommended.

A group of islands southeast of Koh Chang forms the Moo Koh Mai See. The islands are mountainous, covered with rainforest. Coconut groves grow around fishing villages. Koh Mai See Yai has a splendid sandy beach on its east coast.

Koh Mai Dang is a tranquil island east of Koh Wai. It is a nice place to fish and camp out. Its white sandy beach and unspoiled corals are its main draw.

Koh Kood In 2007, the group of 24 islands south of Koh Chang officially became a district. With a population of 2,118 Koh Kood is the least populated district in all Thailand. While the main island of Koh Kood is the fourth largest in Thailand it has a population of only 1,715, the rest of the district's dwellers are in Koh Mak.

Situated 80 Kms or 1 hour by speedboat from the mainland, Koh Kood is the farthest and easternmost island of Thailand bordering Kampuchea. Infrastructure here is limited to the essentials such as schools, hospitals, police stations, telephone, electricity and water. Most resorts generate their own electricity, either by fuel or solar energy. The oldest village is Klong Mad Village where the people are of Thai and Cambodian origins who migrated from neighboring Koh Kong since the turn of the 20th century.

Koh Kood

Koh Kood has a mountainous terrain in the central region with 70% of the area covered by tropical rainforest. Development is scarce and mostly at coastal areas. Koh Kood boasts of scenic beauties, crystal clear sea, pristine beaches, breathtaking waterfalls and a pure natural environment. Most of the resorts are on the west. The Khao Paenthee is the highest peak and a superb viewpoint for the island-dotted sea. Two of the most beautiful islands are the Koh Mai Si and Koh Raet, both small islands of coconut trees, fine beaches, healthy corals and spectacular sunset viewpoints.

Moo Koh Mak Lying between Koh Chang and Koh Kood, 40 Kms from the mainland, is a group of 9 islands called Moo Koh Mak. Only 4 of these islands, Koh Mak, Koh Kradad, Koh Kham and Koh Rayang Nok, are occupied. Koh Mak, with an area of just 16 square Kms and a coastline of 27 Kms is the third largest island of the marine national park. It has a flat terrain with plenty of coconut and rubber trees. Its main attractions are its long stretches of pristine beaches and seawater. There are about 400 residents here, most of them related. Accommodations are mostly situated on the northwest or southwest of the island. Infrastructure is limited but there is a road system that conveniently link up the island. Ao Suan Yai, to the northwest has the longest and most beautiful beach where you can view Koh Raet, Koh Phee, Koh Kham and the captivating sunset. The beach is lined with coconut trees. During low tide a sand dune appears between Koh Mak and Koh Kham allowing you to walk across. Ao Khao on the southwest is another spectacular site of fine beach with clear water and a majestic vista of Koh Kood, Koh Rayang Nai, Koh Rayang Nok and the captivating sunset. There are some coral reefs teeming with fishes and is a dream destination for anglers.

Koh Kham is a small island with clear seawater, coral reef and coconut fringed sandy beaches excellent for swimming, snorkeling, fishing and angling for squids. Aged lava proves the existence of a volcano in prehistoric times. Boulders believed to be volcanic rocks dot the pristine beaches.

West of Koh Mak is Moo Koh Rang, a group of 12 islands. Koh Rang Yai, the largest island, is covered with tropical virgin rainforest and boast of the longest beach in the area, the Had San Chao, where the sand is powdery white and water crystal clear. Divers can enjoy its underwater beauty up to 25 meters deep. Koh Rang Yai has a hilly terrain, its only low-lying areas are at the shores. Birds and reptiles are the main inhabitants. Northwards is Had Cho where a Marine National Park Ranger unit stations. Here, the water is transparent and swimming is safe. Camping is allowed at a small fee and with the approval of the off icer in charge but you have to bring your own food and drinks. Fresh water supply and toilets are available. In front of the ranger off ice is a bridge made by dropping rocks and stones into the sea. It was built to help transport supplies from the International Red Cross Organization to Vietnamese refugees in the past.

Koh Mak

Further south of Koh Rang Yai is Koh Rang Lek which is the fresh water supplier to the former. There is a bird's nest concession in a Koh Rang Lek and it is a major source of bat's dung, valued as superb fertilizers. Visitors may be lucky enough to spot turtles laying eggs on Koh Rang Lek and other nearby islets as they are chosen nesting grounds. The locals call them "charmed" eggs. The other well-known asset of Koh Rang Lek is the oval-shaped stones which have very smooth textures.

The islands of Koh Kra, Koh Thong Lang and Koh Thian on the northeast of Koh Rang Yai are great sites for scuba diving. An array of corals and fishes abound. Of these islands Koh Kra has the longest beach, although only 20 meters long. Swimming is not recommended as the seabed is carpeted with corals. All these 3 islands are only walking-distance apart and the seawater is so shallow it is possible to do so during low tide, but you should float with a life jacket or buoy to avoid stepping on the healthy corals. The last coral island you should not miss is Koh Yak where you swim with the fishes while you snorkel. It is a rock island with no beach and is off the shores of Had San Chao. There is no accommodation in Moo Koh Rang. Visitors make day-trip or camp at Ao Cho Beach.

Eating Out

As a marine national park, one would expect some seafood fares and in Koh Chang you can rightly demand the freshest of seafood. Fresh daily hauls ensure an abundant supply of seafood.

Over the years, Koh Chang has evolved into a gourmand's haven. Restaurants serve a wide variety of food ranging from European to Mediterranean to Asian.

While Bang Bao and Salakphet continue to be better known seafood joints more outlets are emerging. The Salak Khok fishing village is popular for its seafood in a local environment.

Here you can eat out at the local restaurant or take home fresh fishermen's daily catches. A romantic sunset dinner cruise on wooden boats sets off to the open sea from its base at the mangrove canal. Advance booking should be made.

Chowlay Seafood is one of the original seafood restaurants that made Bang Bao a natural rendezvous for fresh seafood lovers. Located along the row of shops sitting on stilts that lead to the Bang Bao pier the restaurant overlooks the Bang Bao bay. The wide array of choices certainly finds its place in all taste buds.

Almost at the end of Bang Bao pier is Buddha View restaurant which boast of a panoramic view of the Bang Bao Bay. European and Thai dishes are served in a very relaxing and modern ambience.

Eating Out

Chaan Gaja Restaurant & Bar at the Gajapuri Resort offers all-day dining with light snacks, Thai and western cuisine. There is a choice of up to 7 set dinners for a romantic rendezvous on the beach.

Iyara Seafood not only serves fresh seafood delicacies but also a magnificent view of the famed Klong Prao canal and its beach. Its tagline "not only seafood" says it all. Located near the estuary of the canal, patrons have the privilege of enjoying a spectacular sunset and canoeing upstream to watch fireflies after a good dinner.

A new restaurant, The Cape Seafood, sits right at the estuary of Klong Prao canal. It commands a captivating view of the sunset from its dining tables spread along the coastline. Boats and canoes are anchored nearby ready to take you out to the sea or take you in to the Klong Prao canal before or after a delectable seafood appetite. After dinner you can ask to visit Sabay Bar of the same owner.

Sabay Bar is not only for drinking. Barbecue seafood are served alfresco on the White Sand Beach. Diners relax on the sandy beach enjoying live band music and watching fire-flinging performance while food and wine are served.

The artsy Tonsai Restaurant serves fusion food while you laze in its cozy ambient swinging on a hammock. The works in its art gallery are not only decorations. They are merchandise for sale as well!

The new Aiyapura Pizzeria at Klong Son not only specializes in pizzas. It is the village's bakery! Freshly made hamburgers, steaks, pastas, bread and cakes are available.

After a hearty dinner drop into one of the Wine Gallery outlets. They are found at Kai Bae, Lonely and White Sand beaches. The Wine Gallery will not disappoint you if you are looking for fine wine and other beverages to wind down the night.

There are much more to excite and surprise foodies in Koh Chang. As a general guide we put together a synopsis of restaurants at the back of the book for your reference.
